

Sleeping Arrangement, Support and Refreshment

Aluf Batslut Alley

Neighborhood	Florentine
Additional Uses	Commerce
Point Type	Secondary It is located on the ground floors of urban building spaces and allows sleeping arrangements, food, refreshment, or rest.

Tool Allocation

In the city, the street and the ground floors to which it flows, form a continuous space. This tool constitutes a different concept, a new kind of municipal order. The municipality has the right, according to the Planning and Construction Law, to expropriate a part of a project for a substantial public need.

These allocations, which produce a new urbanism, are an existential necessity for many populations that are on the move in the city, and currently, they are needed immediately.

The allocation operation is done in a specific period of time, for example, between rentals, and uses the area from the ground floor as a response to the public needs, for accommodation, refreshment, and support.

About

The three allocations are located between HaShuk street, Aluf Batslut Alley, and Nahalat Binyamin, in the south of the city.

Allocating sleeping arrangements on the ground floor is a unique solution for populations who live on the move in the city. The sleeping unit is located next to a commercial use and is under their responsibility. The unit is located as a continuous passage with the street, and its entrance is through the common corridor in the building, which allows one to feel belonged in urban life.

Another allocation is for a support staff whose role is to provide support, when needed, for users in general, and temporary users in particular. Today, the model for buildings that support communities, such as the homeless population, form one unit and contain all the uses for the community's needs. The new model offers support when needed and according to the wishes of the users, and is available and accessible center for all, and thus there is no dependence on the therapeutic process.

The third allocation focuses on public restrooms and joins the refreshment system in the urban network.

